Graduates with Critical Thinking

What is the role of Higher Education and the Labor Market?

Critical Thinking for Successful Jobs or in short Think4Jobs is a Partnership funded by the Erasmus+ program and the State Scholarship Foundation (Greece). The Think4Jobs project wishes to tackle a 21st century issue concerning graduates' lack of employability in the labor market due to their lack of soft skills. The Partnership focuses particularly on Critical Thinking and aims at developing blended apprenticeships' curricula for Higher Education Apprenticeships with a view to enhance students' Critical Thinking (CT) in various subjects such as Teacher Training, Economics, Veterinary Medicine, Business Informatics. For that purpose a close collaboration between Higher Education Institutions (HEIs) and Labour Market Organisations (LMOs) will be developed.

Ten partners from HEIs and LMOs from five European countries (Germany, Greece, Lithuania, Portugal, Romania) have come together to collaborate for the effective promotion, development, support and assessment of students' CT. Additionally, the project will exploit apprenticeships as a privileged interface engaging both HEI and LMOs in order to transfer students' CT skills into a professional context. Specifically, the Partnership will engage in the development of five Intellectual Outputs, one Learning/Teaching/Training Activity, various Multiplier Events and Transnational Meetings across the five countries of the Consortium.
